HONGKONG, January 24th, 1900.

ESTABLISHED are, perhaps, too apt to place the worst construction on everything done by Russia, and in contrasting the promises of her statesmen with the performances of heroficals to attribute the discrepancy to innate bad faith. It is not to be denied that Russia has, on many occasions openly and deliberately broken faith, and it is unfortunately the case that Russia's diplomacy has come to be synonymous for untruth and treachery, and yet it may be, and we believe frequently is the case, that Russia herself has been the deceiver party; that she has set the ball rolling with the best of intentions, but the increased velocity has proved too powerful for her, went control; and the object started in a safe, or even landable direction, has surmounted its track, and rushed as a devouring avalanche over her more civilised neighbours. Russia, in fact, meant not learned peace; she is still in that stage of her development when war is her natural condition, and it's doubtful in what direction it will break out, and what character it will assume. It is indeed the later characteristic that is ever present to Russian statesmen, and compels them, frequently, against their wills, to make these enormous warlike preparations, which in the end make Russia a terror to herself as well, or even more than, to her neighbours. That Russia herself is conscious of these facts, and that a large and increasing party is sincerely bent on their amendment is indicated in many directions. Mr. De Witte's private memorandum, issued now rather more than a year ago, is an indication of what Russia's present statesman, does not fail to grasp. If the proverb be true that "war begets war," it is no less true that peace engenders peace, and Mr. De Witte's memorandum, evidently never intended to become the property of the world, is an indication that statesmen, dimly and indistinctly, it is true, and only half-consciously, had a sentiment of the fact. In a nation but just emerging from nomadism war is its burden; it is its normal condition—every man carries his life in his own hands, and is equally prepared to exercise his strength in attacking his neighbour or defending himself. But with the growth of industrial enterprise, all this becomes changed. The individual has, in addition to his person, required property, and property of a nature particularly obnoxious to attack. He is in fact more concerned in defending himself than in attacking his neighbour. So far saw Mr.

The U.S. transport Menelaus arrived at Nagasaki from Manila on the 14th inst. She had on board 135 prisoners, who had been convicted of various crimes committed in the Philippines for 239, instead of 135, for 223 days; after reducing the attendance of 1850 pro rata to the same number of days, 220, we find an increase in 1899 of 30,917 attendances. The highest monthly attendances 1,072, 1,070, and 1,055, actually exceed the total annual rolls of the years 1898-1899. The largest number of boys present on any day in 1899 was 1,062, and were present on 100 days throughout the whole year.

— Hence it would appear that we are justified in considering the increased demand for admission as a permanent feature. This presents a remarkable contrast to the condition of affairs that existed in the early nineties, when the offer of free education, including the loan of books, was required to induce Chinese boys to enter to the Central School to learn English. The present condition is that there is no longer any call for the services of the Government to keep the prison system in order, and the inmates are now compelled to seek their own means of support.

The death of an old resident of Shanghai, Mr. J. M. Ritter, took place at home on the 14th inst., the melancholy tidings having been related to his brother at Nanking. Mr. Ritter, China as teamster in the firm of Fletcher & Co., in 1853, was established, along with Mr. Dreyfus, the firm of Dreyfus, Ritter & Co. at Shanghai. He was one of the founders of the Shanghai Water Works Co., and was subsequently appointed secretary, which post he held until he was forced to resign it through failing health some time ago. His death was not unexpected.

A TERRIBLE COUGH.

"94, Commercial Road, Peckham, July 12.
"Dear Sir—I am a poor hand at expressing my feelings, but I should like to thank you. Your lozenges have done wonders in relieving my terrible cough. Since I had the operation of 'Tracheotomy' (the same as the late Emperor of Germany, and will he him, thank God, I am still alive) performed at St. Bartholomew's Hospital, no one could possibly have had a more violent cough; it was so bad at times it quite exhausted me. The mucus, which was very copious and hard, has been softened, and I have been able to get rid of it without difficulty.—I am, sir, your truly, J. Hill."

YESTERDAY.

At the Magistracy yesterday before Mr. Gom-perts Chan Sz and Yu Shan Tin, the former being the keeper and the latter the manager of the Chop Yik Godown at West Point, were charged on remand with storing explosives in the godown in question.

Captain Superintendent May conducted the case on behalf of the prosecution. Mr. Evans appeared for Yu Shan Tin and Mr. Sharp for Chan Sz. Mr. Evans asked for the cases to be dealt with separately, and accordingly the charge against his client was gone into first. Defendant pleaded not guilty.

U Fuk, building contractor, said he knew the Kwan Wo Tung, he being a partner in that firm. He knew the Chop Yik Godown, which was recently burned down. He had a share in the Godown, which was managed by the defendant Yu Shan Tin. The rents for the goods in the godown were collected by the accountant, who paid them to Yu Shan Tin. The latter divided them amongst the partners in the godown.

In reply to Mr. Evans, witness said the defendant did not reside on the godown premises. The accountant resided there. He did not know whether the defendant would have any knowledge of the goods stored in the godown. He had a share in the godown but knew nothing about the goods stored there. He knew nothing about any rules in connection with the godown.

Inspector Baker said that after the fire at the Chop Yik Godown he went to the Kwan Wo Tung firm and asked for the manager. The defendant was sent for and stated that he was the manager of the Chop Yik Godown. When asked his name the defendant said it was Yu Fuk. After the fire he got the books pertaining to the godown from the possession of the godown keeper, who was the accountant Chan Sz.

P. C. Mackay said that after the fire at the Chop Yik Godown he made a search and found the box of ammunition produced in No. 2 Godown. There was about two feet of rubbish on the top. He continued his search the next day and found some exploded cartridges in the same godown. The cartridges produced were part of them. He also found exploded cartridges in No. 3 godown on the 28th December. On the 21st instant he found the lead and cartridges produced in No. 7 Godown, and he found some more exploded cartridges in the same Godown on Monday. He had been in the army, and the box produced was a proper ammunition box.

P. C. Brown deposed to finding the pieces of lead produced among the ruins of the Chop Yik Godown. They consisted of lead and cartridge melted together.

A Sergeant Interpreter said he was on duty when the defendant was charged. In reply the defendant said, "I do not know the nature of the goods stored in the godown."

His Worship recalled U Fuk, who now said the defendant was not the manager of the godown but of the Kwan Wo Lung. He had never said the defendant was the manager of the godown. The accountant, Chan Sz, was the manager of the godown. The defendant took charge of the money in connection with the godown and exacted the accountant, from whom he received the money. He did not know with whom people made arrangements when they wished to store goods in the godown. Chan Sz had been connected with the godown seven or eight years.

Mr. Evans, in addressing the Court for the defence, submitted that there was no case against the defendant. Because this man happened to take rents he could not be said to keep explosives. The evidence of the prosecution was to the effect that the defendant did not know the nature of the goods stored in the godown.

Chan Sz, accountant at the Chop Yik Godown, said he entered into the books all the goods received for storing into the godown. He was not aware that any cartridges were stored in the godown. He produced a copy of the rules for the regulation of the godown. Rule 9 said that goods which would injure other goods in the godown were prohibited. Had anyone brought him ammunition to store he would have refused it. Yu Shan Tin did not know the nature of the goods stored in the godown. Tam Hoi, the godown keeper, did. He asked the customers and the godown keeper if he had brought his boxes of ammunition back to him, he would have refused to take it in. The books produced contained correct entries, so far as he knew, of the goods stored in the godown.

Replying to the Captain Superintendent, witness admitted that it was his duty to see that the rules of the godown were observed and that the prohibited articles mentioned in Rule 9 were not stored.

Tam Hoi said he was the keeper of the Chop Yik Godown, and if anyone wanted to store cargo in the godown he asked him, telling him what cargo he wanted to store. If a man had told him he was bringing gunpowder he would not have taken it in. He had never seen boxes like the cartridge box produced brought in.

In reply to the Captain Superintendent, witness said that when the goods were placed in the godown he went with the customer to see the accountant. He could not store goods without the accountant's authority, nor could any goods be taken out without the accountant's authority. The accountant was the head man at the godown. Witness only looked after the coolies.

His Worship said he would consider his decision, and would hear the other case.

Mok Yi, a coolie employed by Mr. Cooper, of Pottinger Street, said he had taken goods to the Chop Yik godown and stored them there on behalf of his employer. He knew the defendant, who was the accountant at the godown. When he went to store goods he used to ask the godown keeper if he had any room and the godown keeper would refer him to the defendant, and the defendant would ask him what the goods were. When he wished to take away the goods he had to see the defendant and pay for the storage. The defendant would then give him an order for the godown keeper. He had never stored goods or taken goods out without the defendant's authority.

Replying to Mr. Sharp, witness said it was the godown keeper, and not the defendant, who actually saw the goods as they came in.

The evidence given in the previous case was read over.

The Sergeant Interpreter said that when charged the defendant replied, "I have only been in charge of these godowns this year. When I took charge there were some goods there; I do not know the nature of these goods."

Mr. Sharp, for the defence, contended that it was clear that the person contemplated by the Legislature was the owner of the explosive or the person who was seeking to store the explosive. He argued that the box containing the cartridges were sent in disguised, and therefore his client was not responsible. If this charge were upheld the result would be that every employee connected with the godown would be liable.

The Captain Superintendent pointed out that there was no evidence at all that the ammunition produced had any outside covering.

His Worship so resolved his decision in this case also until next Tuesday.

ARRIVAL OF PRINCE WALDEMAR OF DENMARK.

The Danish cruiser Valkyrie arrived this morning and anchored near the Centurion, exchanging salutes. The Danish man-of-war flag is rarely seen in eastern waters, but more interest was attached to the arrival of the Valkyrie on account of Prince Waldemar of Denmark being on board, who is on a cruise to Far Eastern ports. The Prince has arrived from Saigon where many festivities have been held in his honour, including races, balls, dinners, reviews, torchlight and Chinese processions in fact every form of entertainment that could be devised by our hospitable French neighbours.

We are unaware that any special arrangements have been made to entertain the Prince in Hongkong, but no doubt numerous entertainments will be forthcoming, though it is uncertain as yet whether the Prince will remain in Hongkong long enough to allow of any special festivities being arranged in his honour.

His Royal Highness called upon the Governor during the afternoon, and later on Viscount Sutro. His Excellency's A.D.C. returned the visit, His Excellency having been advised to remain in doors by his medical attendant on account of his indisposition.

The Valkyrie is a cruiser of 2,980 tons, 5,300 horse power, built at Copenhagen in 1887, with armoured deck, carries 2 8.2 in. Krupp, 6 5.9 in., 4 qf. 10 machine guns, with 5 torpedo tubes. Speed 17 knots.

THE FORTHCOMING RACES.

SALE OF BOOKSITES—GREAT DECREASE IN THE PRICES.

Yesterday Messrs. Hughes and Hough offered for sale by auction the lots numbered 1 to 17 for the erection of books and mat-sheds on the Government ground adjoining the Racecourse, north of the grand stand enclosure.

There was a good attendance, but the prices were considerably below those of previous years. Heretofore quite a number of the lots have been taken up by Chinese professional gamblers and the books erected thereon have been used solely for the playing of fantan and other Chinese games of chance. This year books used solely for this purpose will not be allowed; hence the reduction in the takings. The whole of the lots only fetched $945, against $10,900 last year and $1,985 in 1888.
